We miss this in the selection from Acts that we hear today, but Cornelius is a Roman centurion, employed to exercise the authority of the Roman occupiers over that part of Judea. Most Judeans—whether Jewish or Christian—would avoid him. But Cornelius is no ordinary Roman centurion, as we see in the way he falls on knees when Peter enters his home. After this display of humility, Peter tells him, “You know that it is unlawful for a Jewish man to associate with, or visit, a Gentile, but God has shown me that I should not call any person profane or unclean”. How many of us are willing to say the same about someone on the opposite side, say, of our culture wars or political wars?

“God,” Peter points out, “shows no partiality”. Indeed, while Peter preached about God and Jesus, the Holy Spirit came down upon Cornelius and all the other Gentiles, prompting Peter to see to it that these outsiders were baptized. Remember, Peter was one of those personally told by Jesus, “This is my commandment: love one another as I love you”. Today we hear him put it into action. May it challenge us to show God’s love to one another as well.

Love. Makes us feel all warm and fuzzy inside, right? But, Jesus tells us, the ultimate show of love is “to lay down one’s life for one’s friends”. That brings us up short. Love is over-the-moon wonderful until you start talking about its cost. Love can cause you to put someone else’s life before your own. Love can leave you vulnerable. Love can lead to heartbreak and grief. But this is what Jesus himself did, and what he calls us to do. Self-sacrificing love is the countercultural and, to many, absurd idea of putting others before yourself, for, as John wrote in his letter, God is love, and this, from the start of creation, is what God has done. What sacrifice have I made this past week for someone I love? What sacrifice can I make this coming week? What sacrifice am I willing to make for someone I hardly know?
