The days are growing shorter. The nights are getting longer. For those few who live above the arctic circle, the sun has disappeared for weeks now and won't return until March. The first part of the Gospel resonates loudly for them! As terrifying as some of the images are, as unpleasant as our long nights of winter are, we can take comfort in knowing that God is in charge. The Son of Man will come with his angels and gather those who live in the Lord to be with God. May that give us comfort as the nights continue to grow longer and colder.

The Bible is full of many different genres, from Jewish histories to Jesus' parables, from the poetry of the psalmist to the apocalyptic literature we hear today. As they are in poetry, the words in apocalyptic writings are meant to be understood differently from those of other parts of the Bible. In writing down these terrible images, Daniel and Mark were not trying to describe what would literally happen in the future, but to shake their listeners out of their somnolence. "Watch out!" "Look ahead!" But each includes words of reassurance. Daniel's image of the wise and just fixed like stars in the night sky reminds us of God's promise to Abraham. And Jesus' reference to himself coming in glory on the last day reminds his disciples that he will always be with us, even as he was facing his crucifixion, death, and burial.

We end where we began just about an entire year ago. The Gospel we heard on the first Sunday of Advent, on December 3, 2023, was the passage of Mark that immediately follows today's Gospel. "Be watchful! Be alert! You do not know when the time will come". But remember the context then. Christmas was not even four weeks away. From the time Jesus was born into this world, and even more now that he is risen to new life, he has been with us. So, we can face whatever tribulations may happen—in the world, in our lives—for we know that no matter what, Jesus is with us. We have no need to be afraid. How do I balance the vigilance I am called to exercise in anticipation of the end of the world with the comfort I take in God's merciful presence?

The United Nations declared November 18 as "World Day for the Prevention of and Healing from Child Sexual Exploitation, Abuse and Violence." The creation of the observance of this international day is a milestone for increasing global awareness of sexual abuse against children. At the same time, it serves as a reminder to the safeguarding community to continue to develop prevention strategies and to bring healing, and justice for our survivors and their families.

The Seven Saints K of C would like to thank you for your continued support.
